The Danger From Two Sources Pronounced by the Physicians to be Practically Over.

THE WOUND NOW CONSIDERED HEALED

A Count of the Blood Showed That There is Not the Slightest Indication of Blood-Poisoning.

The Distinguished Patient Has Been Removed to Another Bed and His Allowance of Beef Tea Was Increased.

Milburn House, Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 10.—
"God's contribution to the American people will be the sparing of the president's life." As the evening shadows were falling Monday night John G. Milburn, president of the Pan-American exposition, reverently uttered these words as he stood before the house in which the nation's patient was nighting so bravely with death. And all who had been at the Milburn residence Monday reflect the view that the battle will be won and the prayers of the world will be answered. Since Sunday night not an unfavorable symptom has appeared. Every hour has been a victory.

stringly hight not an untavorable symptom has appeared. Every hour has been a victory.

Faith In the outcome grows stronger and stronger and hope mounts higher until in the minds of some the danger of all future complications is brushed aside and hope has been conviction. Indeed many of the president's friends seem possessed with a sort of superstitlous confidence In the president's recovery which nothing but an absolute change for the worse can shake. And the basis for the confidence that is expressed is solid. All they will say is that with every hour the danger of complication from peritonitis or blood poisoning decreases. Dr. McBurney, the most eminent of the physicians in attendance, expresses the opinion that if the improvement continues it will be a week yet before the president can be pronounced out of danger and convalescent.

And some of his colleagues, like Dr. Mann, place the limit of danger still further away. The fear of peritonitis it can be said positively has well nigh disappeared. At the expiration of the 72 hour period at 4 o'clock Monday afternoon danger from the source was almost one.

be said positively has well nigh disappeared. At the expiration of the 72 hour period at 4 o'clock Monday afternoon danger from that source was almost gone. The president himself has been cheerful all day and has expressed confidence in his recovery. Monday he asked for a morning paper, but this, of course, had to be denied him. It is with some difficulty that he can be restrained from talking, and Col. Myron T. Herrick, of Cleveland, is quoted as authority for the statement that he has spoken at intervals of several things he proposes to do in the future.

Monday morning he asked to be allowed to move his position and when permission was given, before the attendants could move him he changed to the position he desired to assume without difficulty or pain. This speaks much for his general strength and spirits.

Mrs. McKinley saw him again Monday for a brief visit, and Secretary Cortelyou was admitted for the first time.

The extreme optimism of the vice president and the members of the cabinet would be difficult to overstate.

"I am absolutely confident everything will turn out all right." declared the vice president, and he said he based his confidence on information behind the public expressions of the physicians. So relieved are Secretary Gage and Attorney General Knox at the steady improvement that they returned to Washington Monday night feeling strongly that their chief would recover, but with the assurance of the physicians that if a change for the worse should come it would be gradual and that they would have ample time to return. In the case of Secretary Gage there was also a public reason why he should be at his post. New York financiers have appealed to him to relieve the situation in the money market by increasing deposits in national, banks and he feels that he can hardly act at this distance from the scene if he finds that action desirable.

Secretary of State Hay arrived Monday night, and will remain with the other members of the cabinet at least for a day or two.

Milburn House, Buffalo, Sept. 11.—At 3:15 o'clock everything was quiet around the Milburn house. No one appeared to be stirring within and no one had left the house since the Issuance of the midnight bulletln.

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 11.—The corps of emlnent surgeons and physicians in attendance upon the wounded president Tuesday committed themselves without reservation to the opinion that their patient was out of danger and that only the possibility of complications threatened his life. They did not give assurance of his recovery collectively over their signature in an official bulletin, but they went a long way toward it individually and separately during the day. Each of them, with the exception of Dr. Itixey, who did not leave the Milburn residence, placed himself squarely on record, not privately to the friends of the president, but publicly through the agency of the press, that the danger point had passed and that the president would survive the attempt upon his life. "Of course we will all feel easter when a week has passed." said Dr. McBurney, the can of the corps. "We would like to see every door loeked and double locked, but the danger from possible complications is now very remote."

As an evidence of the supreme faith he holds, Dr. McBurney, after the morning consultation, made a trip to Niagara Falls and Tuesday evening returned to New York. He could reach here again in ten hours if the unexpected should happen and there should be a change for the worse.

The little piece of lead in the muscles of the back is giving the physicians no consultation.

little piece of lead in the muscles The little piece of lead in the muscles of the back is giving the physicians no concern whatever. Unless it should prove troublesome to the president later on he will probably carry this grim souvenir of the anarchist with him to the end of his days. The doctors say that once encysted, it can do no harm. The X-ray machine is ready for instant use, however, and if there is the siightest infiammation or pain in the vicinity of the bullet an operation will be performed.

Milburn House, Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 11.

Late Tuesday night there was a slight scare at the Milburn residence caused by the protracted visit of the consulting physicians, who remained almost two hours, and this was increased by the announcement in the official bulletin issued just before midnight that a slight irritation of the exterior wound, discovered only Tuesday night, had necessitated the opening of a few stitches of the wound. the wound.
As stated in the bulletin which all the doctors signed this mritation was attributed to the fact that a small fragment of the president's coat had been earried into the body by the bullet, and the naval, where the operation was performed. This wound is progressing satisfactorily.

"Decided benefit followed the dressing of the wound Tuesday night" is the way the doctors put it officially. The slight scare which followed the announcement at midnight Tuesday night of the opening of the wound did not have a leg to stand on Wednesday when fuller details of its insignificant character and importance was obtained.

The president now breathes deeply and normally, and the addition of the respiration record to the bulietin was considered valueless. The president's pulse was slightly accelerated in the afternoon, but the change was not deemed material and his temperature remained practically stationary at 100.2 from daylight until dark. The evidences of improvement were the president's keen relish of the beef juice given him during the night and the increase in his allowance from one to three teaspoonfuls and also the fact that the wound is becoming "more healthy."

Dr. McBurnev explained Wednesday afternoon that the slight irritation found still remaining should pass away within the next 24 hours.

The president continues in excellent spirits, but confessed to one of the attendants Wednesday that he was getting lonesome. He requested that he be placed in another bed. A depression had formed in the mattress on which he has lain since he was taken to the Milburn house, and had caused him some discomfort. Another bed was provided, and Wednesday evening he was carefully moved from one to the other without difficulty. Milburn House, Sept. 12.—At the conclusion of the night conference the doctors gave another extremely gratifying report of their patient's progress.

The physicians did not begin to leave the Milburn residence until shortly be fore 11 o'clock. Two reports which they had to communicate could hardly have been more gratifying than they were. Dr. Wasdin and Dr. Mynter came out logether. The latter was hemmed in on all sides by the eager newspaper men. "Good news! Good news! He cried; "nothing but good new poisoning."

He referred the reporters to Dr. Wasdin, of the marine hospital service, who was standing at his side, for a scientific interpretation.

The latter explained that a count of the blood was a microscopic examination

LEON CZOLGOSZ, ASSASSIN.

The name of Leon Czolgosz, the assassin of President McKinley, is best pronounced by the uninitiated by recollecting how the Russian always introduces a "t" into the pronunciation of the name of the czar. Thus the Russian says "t-zar" In the case of Czolgosz one should say "Tschal-gotch," with the "l" faintly sounded and the second "t" quite full. The average American, however, will get it as "Shawlgotch," and that is about as correct as he can make it. The assassin has lived in Detroit, other parts of Michigan, Cleveland and Cincinnati, and been in Chicago quite recently. He is without particular education, except in anarchistic doctrines. The picture given is the one ordered taken by Chief of Police Buil, of Buffalo, and Secretary of War Root.

although this foreign substance was removed, a slight disturbance developed, which made necessary the opening of the wound. The doctors seek to allay all apprehension by the positive statement that this incident can not give rise to other complications, and their frankness in giving the news to the public leaves no reason to question their entire good falth. The further fact communicated in the bulletin that the president is now well enough to begin taking nourishment in the mouth in the form of pure beef juice was, of course, gratifying, but to the laymen the mere mention of a complication, however slight it might be, naturally created alarm.

But the most positive assurances were given that the only effect might be to delay slightly the healing of the wound. It was not in any way the result even of a suggestion of blood poisoning, the physicians declared over their own signatures that it could not result in complications. The opening of the wound was in no sense an operation. Several of the stitches were simply taken out, and after a thorough antiseptic washing of the inflamed tissue, the wound was again sewed up. No anaesthetic was necessary. Considerable delay was caused by the fact that a certain dressing desired by the surgeons was not in the house, and it was necessary to send into the city for it. The first time the messenger returned he did not have what was wanted, and he had to make another trip.

Dr. McBurney, who had intended to leave for Steekbridge Ct. at 11:20 miss.

messenger returned he did not have what was wanted, and he had to make another trip.

Dr. McBurney, who had intended to leave for Stoekbridge, Ct., at 11:20, missed his train. and decided to remain over until Wednesday night. But the doctor himself did all he could to dispel the idea that the change in his plans portended anything serious. In fact, he took occasion to announce as an additional evidence of the improvement of the president that it had been decided to begin to give the president nourishment through the mouth Tuesday night instead of waiting until Wednesday, as had been intended. Beef extract had been intended. Beef extract had been intended. Beef extract had been preferred, Dr. McBurney announced, and it was being administered as the physicians left. The other physicians who listelned to Dr. McBurney's statement assented to it, and then all entered an automobile and were whisked away. Milburn House, Buffalo, Sept. 12.—At 1 a. m. Thursday morning everything was quict at the Milburn house. All the lights are burning very low and no one is stirring about.

Buffalo, Sept. 12.—The condition of the president continued favorable through out the day and nothing occurred to of the relative number of white and red corpuscles in the blood to determine whether inflammation of any sort existed. An increase of white corpuscles, relatively speaking, would show inflammation and deterioriation of the blood that might indicate peritonitis.

He said that Wednesday morning a few drops of blood were taken from the lobe of the ear and microscopically counted under his direction.

"We found," said he, "that the number of white corpuscles was just about normal, while the red cells were slightly below normal, due to insufficient nutrition since the operation.

"The count was not made," continued Dr. Wasdin, "to verify the fact that blood poisoning did not exist, of which we felt certain, but to remove every shadow of doubt. The result is that we feel safe in announcing that not a trace of blood poisoning, peritonitis or inflammation exists. The test could not have been more satisfactory."

"Is the president out of danger?"

"No, I would not say that; he is a very sick man, but his condition under the circumstances could not be better. That much I will say emphatically."

It is now virtually deeided that no attempt will be made to remove the pres-

The five members of the cabinet who are here talked over pending public questions for over an hour Wednesday at the Glenny house, adjoining the Milburn residence, but it is understood that no action resulted. The South American situation was gone over and there was an exchange of opinion regarding the legal phases of the case against the would-be assassin. "As in former times no privileged class ever relinquished its tyranny; no more can we take it for granted that the eapitalists of the present day will forego their privileges and their authority without compulsion. It is therefore self-evident that the fight of prelatorian against the upper and the middle classes must be of a violent character and that mere wage conflicts can never lead to the goal.

Last Efforts to Settle the Big Steel Strike Have Failed.

The Semi-Official Report Is That the Matter of Arranging For a Settlement Was Left With President Theo. J. Shaffer.

Pittsburg, Pa., Sept. 10.-The last fforts to settle the steel strike have failed. The general executive board of the Amalgamated association adjourned Monday evening without late and without either accepting any of the peace propositions which have come indirectly from the United States steel corporation or making any counter propositions, according to the official statement.

The semi-official report is that the proposition secured for the Amalgamated association through the intervention of the representatives of the National Civie Federation was unsatisfactory and that the entire matter of arranging for a settlement was left with I resident Theodore J. Shaf-The board in its sessions of three days has been clamoring for a settlement, but satisfactory terms and means were not at hand and the sessions resolved themselves into an informal discussion of the situation.

At the close of the meeting of the national executive board Monday evening President Shaffer declared that he had no statement to make, but subsequently said: "The board has adjourned, and the out-of-town members will probably leave for their homes Monday night. No peace proposition has been received and none made."

Still later he added that he or no other member of the board would go to New York during the night to submit a peace proposition, saying that he would be at headquarters as usual Tuesday.

The meeting of the board did not adjourn in high good feeling, yet the members of the board were averse to making statements supplémental to that of President Shaffer.

It was stated by some of the members of the board that the adjournment had left matters practically as they were before the meeting had been called, and that the strike must go on as before, leaving arrangements for a possible settlement through a coveted direct conference between the representatives of the United States steel corporation and Presi-the civil war. In a seemingly interminable line of blue the various departments took up their march over the hard, granite pavements. Surging masses of people numbering in the hundreds of thousands, lined the streets, and the house tops, and took advantage of every available point of view along the entire length of the line of parade. In the down-town districts the streets intersecting and adjacent to the line of march was one struggling mass of eager and expectant humanity.

It is estimated that nearly half a million people were spectators of the magnificent pageant. The column was over eight miles in length, and was splendidly handled, the column moving steadily and with scarcely a halt or break until the entire line had passed the reviewing stand.

The scene was most inspiring. Octogenarians of the tottering footsteps and others ereet and sprightly as in youth, but all with limbs and Wichita, Kan., Sept. 12.-The grand hearts of steel, plodded patiently side by side, and among the thousands who made up that gallant host, there were searcely a bare half-dozen whom the fatigues of the march caused to fall out before they passed through the living sea of faces in the court of honor and the reviewing stand.

Every department, as it passed the court of honor and neared the living flag of children formed upon the grand stand facing the long vista at the foot of Bond street, was greetmen of the Mississippi valley, died ed with a patriotic chorus from the throats of thousands of school children composing "The Flag." Mingled with the inspiring strains of martial music and patriotic choruses was the unstinted applause of the populace.

BUSY WOMEN STUDENTS.

How Poor Undergraduates Manage to Make Both Ends Meet at Amerlean Colleges.

Miss Alice Fallows is the author of an article in the Century, which is entitled "Working One's Way Through Women's Colleges."

Just within the entrance of the gymnasium at Smith eollege is a small square room which looks like a booth at a church fair. The bulletin-boards on its walls are covered with blue prints, copies of Gibson pietures, painted frames, college flags, brightcolored class banners, pineushions, pillow-covers and a seore of other fancy articles which seem the pastime of an idle hour. In reality, each one represents the serious investment of a girl who is working her way. The Smith eollege ealendar hanging in a eorner took one girl half through the term. The picture-frame opposite paid the incidental expenses of another for a year, while the jolly pair of football players, constructed out of tissuc-paper and peeans, sitting on the window-sill made the temporary fortune of their inventor. A day after she had slipped in and put them there they became the college fad, and for weeks she could not turn them out fast enough to fill her orders. Then suddenly their popularity waned; no one wanted them; and now, faded and covered with dust, the two favorites of a past hour sit neglected in their eorner, a pathetic warning of the inconstaney of college demand.

Like Smith students, college girls everywhere try these pieturesque methods of making money. The pretty trifles which they sell might seem to a poet the spontaneous expression of the feminine instinct for grace and beauty, but they illustrate rather a poverty of financial opportunities. A eollege man in his effort to support himself is limited only by his eapacity. He ean break stones in the road or publish a paper, as his talent provides. He is free to enter any trade or business in the town, or invent a new one if he pleases. He may wander where he will along economic highways and byways. No one thinks of putting an obstacle in his way. But when a girl, out of the fullness of her desire, determines to work her way through eollege, she must first rid herself of the notion that she can copy her eollege brother. Otherwise she will meet with disappointment, for long ago Mrs. Grundy set a distinction between labor fitting for men and for women, and our colleges for girls still respect it. During undergraduate days, at least, they believe in an emphasis of the woman womanly. The self-supporting girl, therefore, finds before many an industry open to her lawns nor dig gardens, clean furnaces to us in the future." nor shovel snow. The girl who should fornia. THE WOMAN OF POISE.

Her Restfulness Is Not the Result of Accident But of Self-Education Along Right Lines.

The woman of poise is restful to those with whom she comes in contact. To the woman aspiring to this enviable state of mental equilibrium, of eontrolled power, I would say: First, remember to be saving of your nervous force. Do not dissipate your strength upon meaningless movements of hands, feet, eyes or head. Let each motion hav? a purpose, and expend no more strength upon it than it ealls for. Learn to relax and keep the body in that state except so far as some member of it is ealled upon for action. Do not give a strong grasp where a light touch will do the work. Learn to be like an clastie band, which stretches no more than is required, and the strain removed returns at once to its normal eondition. Second, it is trite to say: "Don't worry," so I shall modify the advice and make it possible to follow by saying: "Don't worry unnecessarily." With most women worry becomes a habit, and habits are hard to break, this one particularly. But it ean be done. Sit down some day and think how few impending calamities ever get beyond the potential stage. Worry if you must, but do not begin before it is time. Life's tangles have a way of straightening out when we come close to them. Third, talk much or little, as is natural for you, but be sure that when you speak you say something. Endeavor to put individnality, which is a very different thing from eeeentricity, into your remarks.

Let your speech, even though it be about trifles, have pith and point. In eonversation, as in most things, it is well to have a goal. The mention of a goal suggests a world about what is perhaps, aside from nerves, the greatest cnemy to poise. This is aimlessness. Too many women are aimless in their talk, aimless in their actions, aimless in their lives. Thus they fritter away the forees which, if concentrated, would result in that useful and harmoniously beautiful product of eivilization, the highest type of woman-the woman of poise.-Ina Brevoort Roberts, in Woman's Home Companion.

You Do, or You Don't Need Glasses

> The eye being a rather delicate organ, great care should be exercised in the election of proper glasses. Many believe that glasses should be restored to only when the sight becomes so defective as not to be able to do without. This is a great mistake which must be combatted Whenever there is unmistakable evidence of the need of their aid, they should be used. A neglect of this rule sometimes produces mischief which results in serious trouble if the course be persisted in.

SUNDAY AFTERNOONS.

From the window of the chapel softly sounds an organ note.
Through the peaceful Sabbath gloaming drifting shreds of music float.
And the quiet and the firelight and the sweetly solemn tunes

Bear me dreaming back to boyhood and its Sunday afternoons;

When we gathered in the parior, in the parlor stiff and grand,
Where the haircloth chairs and sofas stood

Then the quaint oid parior organ, with the quaver in its tongue, Seemed to tremble in its fervor as the sacred songs were sung,

As we sang the homely anthem, sang the Of the giory of the story and the light no

While the dusk grew even deeper and the evening settled down,
And the lamp-llt windows twinkled in the drowsy little town, Old and young we sang the chorus and the echoes told it o'er

In the dear, familiar voices, hushed or scattered evermore.

and low the music dies. And the picture in the firelight fades be-fore my tear-dimmed eyes, But my wistful fancy, listening, hears the night wind hum the tunes,

That we sang there in the parlor on those Job Lincoln, in Saturday Evening Post.

CHAPTER III.—CONTINUED. Mrs. Vane was at home and welcomed Barbara heartily.

"I'm all alone here, and you're just the person I want to see. Went to call on your mother yesterday. She is lonesome, and I've asked her to come and pay me a visit of a week or a month, just as she feels. I find that Thomas for some reason never heard of your father's death. Such things will happen even in a world of newspapers and telegraphs. I want you to tell me all about yourself and your plans. I don't believe you ean do a thing, but I am ready to help you if you're the girl I think you are. The Vanes always were proud and aristoeratie people; but, if we have ever stood up for one thing more than another, it was for honest labor in the house or the field or the shop or any where. I hate the aristoeracy of doing nothing. All my boys learned a trade, and all my girls ean cook just as well as they can play the piano, and some of 'cm better. I'd rather eat their pie than hear their piano. Sit right there, dear, and be comfortable."

Barbara had not been in the house hour had passed she was astonished propose to do?" at Mrs. Vane's knowledge of human ature and her grasp of the subject of servants and housekeeping problems generally. I am an eccentric old lady with a good many erank notions about servants. The fact is, I try to treat them just as Christ taught us to do. That's the reason folks eall me queer. People that try to do the Christlike thing all relations of life have always help are the very ones who don't want young men in stores get for elerk been called queer, and always will be."

When Barbara finally went away after refusing an urgent invitation to remain to tea, 'she had made an arrangement with Mrs. Vane to incet with her and Mrs. Ward and a friend of both, to talk over some practical plan for getting the servants and the housekeepers together for a mutual conference.

"If anything is done," Mrs. Vane insisted, "it must be done with both parties talking it over in a spirit of Christian love. It never ean be solved in any other way."

The date fixed for the conference was two weeks from that afternoon, and Barbara went back to her work quite enthusiastie over the future and very much in love with the woman who was known to most of the members of Marble Square church as "that eceentrie Mrs. Vanc."

The two weeks had gone by quiekly, and Thursday noon at dinner in the Ward house Barbara was surprised to find, when she eame in to serve the first course, that Alfred Ward had unexpectedly arrived. He had spent two months of his summer vacation with college classmates on the lakes, and had returned sooner than his mother had expected, to stay until the term opened again. "Arthur, this is Miss Clark, about whom I have written you," Mrs. Ward said, a little awkwardly. The young man looked at her with Interest, and bowed politely. Barbara returned his bow simply, and did not speak. She felt a little annoyed as the meal proceeded and she was called in at different times. She thought the the college student had been asking questions. Several times she was conacious that he was looking at her. It vexed her, although his look was always respectful.

The meal was almost over when Mrs. Ward suddenly asked his wife: "O, have you heard, Martha, that Dr. Law b'e Square pulpit." "No! How sudden! What will the housekeepers?"

Mr. Ward was silent a moment. Barbara was just going out. She slackaned her step almost unconsciously.

"Jorton." "Wilheeome?" "I think he will." "Good!" said Alfred.

Hilda sat down awkwardly in the scat indicated by Mrs. Vane, and there was a moment of embarrassed silence. Hilda was dressed to go out, and Barbara could not help wondering how far the girl understood what the meeting was about. She began to feel a little angry at Mrs. Vane, without knowing just why, when that good woman very frankly eut aeross the lots of all preiminaries by saying: "Now, then, Hilda, you know well enough what I asked you to come in for. We want to make a beginning of some sort of helping the girls who are out at service realize what their work means, and what they are worth to a family, and all

red. The red lost. The flashing lamp of the Deschanel club has been a fatal lode-star to many a youth whom the common gambling den could not scathe. To scores of the young aristocracy of New Orleans it has been the starting point to a certain goal. Sunlight, through the glass of a richly studded rotunda, traces delicate patterns upon deep-piled rugs. Tapestries and hangings, the envy of eastern princes, deaden all sounds. Carefully shaded lamps soften outlines and remove the traces which one man bates to see in the face of another. From the walls gems of recent salons tempt the gambler an instant from his play. The exquisite in art is a brief sedative to ragged nerves. Music from a hidden orchestra lessens the tension, unseen, always felt, wherever there is play. From dome to carpet nothing offends the sense of the most acute of the Latin-Gallic race. And yet, known to every police precinct of New Orleans, has thus far eluded the vigilance of the law. The plan of the place sprang full-grown from a woman's brain. By no means its least attraction lies in the constant presence of this woman with an imperturbable past. When the club opened a rumor winged abroad that Mme. Deschanel was the widow of Gen. Felix Deschanel, who fell in the campaign of Maximilian in Mexico. Of bounties and plunder, it was whispered that this brilliant general had reaped a golden harvest, with which his widow had founded the Deschanel club. What men knew was that Mme. Deschanel, president, secretary and hostess, ruled her small domain with perfect justice and

CHAPTER II.

At half after seven, the bell on the secretary's desk at the club jingled Mme. Deschanel raised the telephone receiver.

A voice said: "De L. came home with me to-night, after losing everything this afternoon. His mood was so black that I dared not leave him I urged him to rest before dinner. When he seemed to be asleep, I left the room for a moment. He has shot himself. What is to be done?"

"Good heavens!" exclaimed Mme. Deschanel, is that you, Baronne?"

"I'll be there in ten minutes." Scandal, exposure, ruin chased through her brain as Mme. Deschanel threw herself into the first of the long line of hansoms stretching away from the door. She gasped an address, promising triple fare for haste.

Ten minutes later Baronne, in person, admitted her to his apartments. Without a word they entered a bedchamber. The large room was dimly lighted. A single candle burned on the mantel. The furtive glance of the excited woman, as by instinct, sought the canopied bed on the opposite side of the room.

There lay De Lignac, deadly white. He was still fully dressed. An outstretched arm hung over the side of the bed. Beneath it, on the floor, lay the revolver, just as it had fallen from his hand. The single glance read the situation.

"Horrible!" "Horrible!" muttered Mme. Deschanel. The pent panic sought outlet. "A white-livered fool ike him should stay at home with his mother! Coward! Execrable-whyif one word of this escapes, my place is ruined. The pleasure of hundreds sacrificed to a child!"

She turned fiercely upon Baronne. 'How much did he lose?"

"His annual allowance." answered Baronne. A slight tremor touched his voice. "And some hundreds, borrowed from friends who chanced to be at the club this afternoon."

"H'm! as bad as that?" said Mme. Deschanel in a quieter tone.

"It's a nasty mess at best." A sudden idea reached her.

"Does anyone else know of this?" "No; my valet, the only person in the place, happened to be in the wine cellar at the moment."

A quiet, self-complacent smile relieved the haggard look of her face. The thought that she had saved the house of Deschanel cheered her more leisurely drive back to the club.

CHAPTER III.

At midnight the life of the Deschanel club is at its height. Men. flushed with champagne, lounge indifferently upon divans, sit doggedly at one table or stride feverishly from room to room, trying a hand at baccarat, roulette or ther games.

The pale drink makes many kinds of men. But one thought rules them. Whether by indifference, persistence or vacillation, the genius of the hour and place must be served.

Wheedled, if possible, bullied, if necessary, now the one. again the other tactic wins from Fortune, fleeting favor for her devotees.

Shortly after midnight the outer door opened and swung to. A young man, carefully dressed and with the appearance of having dined leisurely and well, entered. He approached the roulette table and carelessly tossed a hundred dollar bill on the red. The red

Joseph Young, 51½ State street, Columbus, O. To my many friends:

I am pleased to make a report to you of the pleasant visit my wife and I had in Western Canada.

We visited the territories of Alberta, Assiniboia, and Saskatchewan, and found them far surpassing our imagination, but little did I expect to find such rich, loamy soil, so much of it, and so uniform in its level prairie lay. I do think the soil of Canada as a rule equals if not excels the finest prairie farm lands of Indiana. These lands are immense in their richness, and when once the sod is rotted and pulverized, it is as pliable and as easily cultivated as Indiana sandy soil.

Western Canada, from my point of view, offers as fine opportunities for mixed farming as any place in my knowledge. The long, sunshiny days, together with the rich soil, produce very fine wheat, oats, barley, flax and other cereal products. There is scarcely any attempt to raise corn, except early varietics for table use. The season is too short to depend upon maturing field corn. From the standpoint of getting this land ready for the plow, I must say that I never saw such a vast extent, practically all ready, so all that one has to do is to hitch up the plow and go to work. This is not the case with all the Canadian land, however; some of "Good! Very good!" The furrows it has quite a bit of timber, much LARD-Steam of it may be called brush land, and some of it has lovely forest groves, dotted here and there, thereby covering a hundred and sixty acres.

I have no doubt but that this country excels as a grazing or ranching country, because they have such rich grass, having an abundance of rain to keep it fresh. They also have plenty of water streams, and as a rule water may be reached at a depth of from 20 to 40 feet. From this you see there can be plenty of hay mown for winter feeding, and I have had reliable farmers to tell me that their stock will feed on hay alone, and be ready for market in the spring. Upon inquiring about the expense of raising a steer, a farmer replied that he did not consider it would cost Mme. Deschanel shivered slightly as any more than $4.00 or $6.00 to develop a three-year-old steer. I truly think Canada offers a fine opening for a young man or a man who is renting land in Indiana. One hundred and sixty acres of good black land will cost you only $10.00 at the time you enter it, and by plowing and cultivating five acres each year for three years, gives you one hundred and sixty acres of good land for $10.00. This land can be bought from the Railroad Companies, private corporations or the Government for $3.00 to $4.00 per acre.

From a financial standpoint, I believe that for a series of years (five), a young man can make $10.00 in Canada, whereas he would only make $1.00 here, and I feel sure that I spent more money to get my eighty acre farm in White County, Indiana, cultivated, than it would cost me to cultivate eight hundred acres in Canada. This may seem a strong view to take of the matter, but when you take into consideration the clearing, ditching, fencing and the expensive breaking in of the stumps, and then compare the expense to that of land needing only the breaking, you will conclude that it is not such a wild or exaggerated statement as you might at first think.

I enjoyed the balmy, breezy atmosphere, which was bracing and refreshing, and the cool nights which made it so pleasant for sleep.

On making inquiries regarding the winters in this country I learned that the people never suffer from the cold, as the weather is dry and invigorating, and in a great many places, farmers and herders allow their stock to run outside the year round.

One great advantage to the settlers in Western Canada is the free creameries established by the Government. and run exclusively in the interest of the farmer.

I visited Thomas Daley, a farmer near Edmonton, Alberta, who showed me oats he had raised, some of which took the first prize at the Paris Exposition last year. The same yield of 110 bushels to the acre in 1899.

Yours truly, FRANK FISHER. Mrs. Howes-For mercy's sake, John, what have you been doing in the back yard
